JAMES BOGAN is a professor emeritus of art, a poet, and a filmmaker, who has taught at the Missouri University of Science & Technology in Rolla since 1969. His Ph.D. research at the University of Kansas on William Blake drew him simultaneously into art and literature. Since then he has integrated various disciplines into courses like "Poets and Painters" and "Script to Screen." He has team-taught courses in the Renaissance, the French Revolution, and Western Civilization. Representing S&T the Missouri-London Program, he taught Art History and a specialized course in Blake in London during the winter semester of 1995. In 2002 he taught Michaelangelo Meets the 20th Century at Teikyo University-Holland. The MS&T Film Festival, which he initiated in 1975, has received statewide recognition for its programs and regularly features visits by eminent filmmakers such as Les Blank, James Broughton, Jimmie Briggs, and Ken Burns. In 1993 Professor Bogan received a Faculty Excellence Award in recognition of his contributions in teaching, research, and service; and in 1997 he was named a "Curators' Teaching Professor," and subsequently received the "Governor's Award for Excellence in Teaching." In 2005 he was the recipient of the "President's Award for Outstanding Teaching" from the four campuses of the University of Missouri System. In the spring of 2010 he was invited to address the faculty and students of the Beijing Institute of Foreign Studies about Blake, filmmaking, and poetry. Although he was emeritized in 2012, Professor Bogan continues to lecture, to do research, to write, and to make films. Summers Mackinac Island he leads short courses in Art & Film for the Mackinac Island Arts Council in Michigan.

His scholarly publications include articles on William Blake and an experimental anthology, Sparks of Fire (North Atlantic Press, 1982). Scholarship, poetry, musical scores, and graphics comprise this 480-page volume on the modern response to Blake. The Library Journal chose it as "one of the best books from a small press in 1982." The New York Times noted that his casebook on Les Blank's film Burden of Dreams (North Atlantic Press, 1984) was "a fine collection of essays."

In 1986 Professor Bogan lectured at the Federal University of Para in Brazil under the sponsorship of the Fulbright Commission. In addition to teaching courses in literature, he shot T-Shirt Cantata, a poetic documentary about the people of the Amazon. The film was supported by a grant from the Independent Production Fund and subsequently won a CINE Eagle Award. It has been screened at numerous international film festivals to "represent the United States and American cinematography." The Hammock Variations, about life, art, and hammocks in the Amazon followed in 1996 and was awarded an Award of Recognition at the Missouri Video Festival and was voted the "Best Short Feature" at the 3rd Annual Brazilian Film Festival in Belem. The Adventures of the Amazon Queen (2007) completes the Brazilology, which he toured around Brazil in 2006. His fluency in Portuguese is sufficient to communicate on the street and in the classroom. The opportunity to collaborate with the poets and filmmakers in Belem continues to draw him back to Brazil--14 times since 1985, about three years stacked end on end. Translations from Max Martins' books 60/35, The Road to Marahu, and To Have Somewhere to Go, have appeared in a number of literary journals. The broadside "What Is the Mystery of Poetry?" was selected for inclusion in the Exquisite Corpse Reader (City Lights, 1989). His Trance-Arrows / Flechas de Transe, in a bi-lingual edition was published by Timberline Press in 2002 with Portuguese translations by Walkyria Magno e Silva.

Bogan's prose and poetry have been published widely in magazines like River Styx, New Letters, and Walking. "Chert" and "Mrs. Franz," poems from Trees in the Same Forest (Cauldron Press, 1976), have been anthologized. He says, "Actually, radio is more accurate to poetry than a book." Public Radio has broadcast many of his works and several have aired on All Things Considered, Market Place, and The Savvy Traveler.

"An Idle Evening's Entertainment," a story of canyon-climbing in Utah, was cited as one of the "Notable Essays of 1988" in The Best American Essays--1989. "Hammock Variations" published in New Letters was cited as one of the "Notable Essays in 2010" in The Best American Essays—2010. He has been invited to give poetry readings at dozens of locations, including universities in the United States, Canada, Ireland, and Brazil, and at venues ranging from grammar schools to taverns. Ozark Meandering, a book of maximal poems and prose, was published by Timberline Press in 1999 in a letterpress edition and is known as "the last hand-made book of the 20th century." In 2001 he was awarded a month long residency at the Cill Rialaig Artist's Retreat in Kingdom of Kerry, Ireland, for the purpose of "writing something." He did and it is now a disk-book entitled: Made in Cill Rialaig. He was invited to return to "do something" in 2005 and he did. A 75th anniversary issue of New Letters features two of his essays on filmmaking in Brazil and the DVD BRAZILOGY. Bound to Belem was published by the Missouri Partners of the Americas in 2012. The essays, poems, proverbs, films, translations, travelers's tales, graphics, and photographs are a distillation of his Brazilian experiences.

Tom Benton's Missouri, a half-hour documentary, was completed in 1992. He produced, directed, and edited this film about Benton's most ambitious mural in collaboration with Frank Fillo. He shares a screen credit with Bob Priddy for the script. The film has won numerous awards including "Best Short Feature" at the Great Plains Film Festival. He also produced the Tom Benton's Missouri Study Disk, an in-depth compilation of materials on computer disk for classroom use by high school teachers. A re-mastered version in High Definition with a new study guide was launched in the Fall of 2012. Another documentary about artists, Chalk up Another, received certificates of honorable mention at the Missouri Video Festival and at the National Fine Arts Video Competition in 1995. Other video productions include the poetry-video Dreams of the Dark River (1998); Evening Songs of the Fishermen (1998) about a Sung Dynasty scroll painting; Eve and Adam (2001), a video of Edwina Sandys' book; and The Making of Millennium Arch (2001) which documents the creation of a colossal sculpture on the MS&T campus. NAKED BRONZE: Louis Smart Sculptor in the Ozarks (2009) is a half-hour documentary about an artistic son of Rodin, who makes stunning human figure sculptures. This film won a Telly Award and was featured at the Kansas City Film Fest in 2011. Man vs. Tree, a controversial documentary, made in 2011 features an animated prelude produced in collaboration with Hebei University in China.

In 2002 he was invited to construct the three-ton Celtic Double Spiral Space Centering Vehicle for the Third Exposition of European Fantastic Art in Eben-Emael, Belgium, and an American version on the campus of Northern Michigan University. Other "earth sculptures" can be found in Goias (Brazil), Mackinac Island, Michigan; and Rolla, Missouri. To help celebrate their 10th anniversary a Micro-Celtic Double Spiral Space Centering Vehicle was solicited and is on display at the European Garden of Fantastic Art in 2009-2010.

The Missouri Arts Council has appointed him to its Media Advisory Panel six times. He has been a project director, evaluator, and grant consultant for the Missouri Humanities Council. In 2000 he served as "Creative Advisor" to the monumental red granite Millennium Arch sculpture group by Edwina Sandys.

Professor Bogan has served as president of the Missouri Partners of the Americas and has coordinated statewide tours of Brazilian Naive Art in 1989, 1992, and 1996. In 1998 he curated Amazing Amazonians and Their Beautiful Boats, an exhibition of river photographs and artifacts and in 2000 Cauldrons of Creation: Poetry and Designs of Max Martins. Both exhibitions toured Missouri and beyond. A Kellogg Foundation Fellowship in International Development took him to Latin America several times and led to a Portuguese language version of Tom Benton's Missouri.

His current projects include Virtuous Amusements and Wicked Demons, a book of poems about art; Carnival, Man, a documentary about the 4th of July in the Ozarks; reissuing Sparks of Fire as an e-book; and the exploration of the Ozarks by foot, bicycle, and kayak.
